F. E. Laramore of the firm of Laramore & Douglass, consulting engineers of Chicago, will arrive in Escanaba the middle of next week to begin preliminary study for an enlarged city steam plant layout, he informed Acting City Manager A. V. Aronson.

The city council at its last meeting authorized the hiring of the consulting engineers to plan and prepare specifications for a layout which will about double the present capacity of the steam plant.

Surprise Blow Speeds Defeat Of Hitlerdom

nearly out of small arms range, a front dispatch said, and Associated Press Correspondent Don Whitehead reported Americans were fanning out swiftly, seizing strategic positions and driving to get the crossings out of artillery range.

The Americans burst across the river—never crossed in battle since Napoleon's day—at a point about 280 miles from Berlin, burrowing in one giant stride what the Germans throughout their history have regarded as an impregnable moat and a symbol of Teutonic greatness.

The dramatic announcement was made tonight 24 hours after the crossings in order to leave the enemy in the dark while the Americans built up a powerful bridgehead. The Germans themselves had yet to tell the homeland that the Americans now were across the stream.

The surprise blow was threatening to outflank the entire Ruhr basin—the greatest resource of war material left to the enemy—and was a military achievement unsurpassed since the Allies stormed ashore in Normandy.

Banks Not Steep

Eisenhower now was in position to strike for the heart of the Reich across the rolling hill country south of the Ruhr valley.

The fact that supreme headquarters in announcing the crossings referred to a bridgehead indicated good progress had been made east, since in military parlance a crossing becomes a bridgehead only when it moves out of direct, short-range fire.

Hodges chose to cross where the Rhine is about a quarter of a mile wide and its banks, steep and almost sheer at Coblenz, begin to flatten out as the stream meanders toward the Dutch frontier.

The sensational development overshadowed combined First and Third army blows farther south, which by German account were about 15 miles from closing a steel trap on possibly 60,000 German troops and pinching off 2,500 mountainous square miles of the western Reich.

In this push, the First army had smashed half way across through Bonn, Rhineland traffic nerve center with a population of 101,000.

The German communiqué said the Ninth armored division had forged across the Ahr River, possibly 15 miles from where the Third army's Fourth armored division was menacing Coblenz and beating unopposed along the west bank of the Rhine.

Blitz Outflanks Nazis

The crossing of the Rhine, an Allied goal almost as soon as the armies of Eisenhower plunged ashore on the beaches of Normandy last June 6, was accomplished nine months and a day after the historic invasion of western France.

It was obvious the Germans were once more caught off guard by the suddenness, and the boldness of the Rhine crossing, which Eisenhower himself once said would be equivalent to a major naval operation. The first waves found opposition light.

All seven of Eisenhower's armies now were lined up in position to cross, and the Germans lone firm hold on the west bank—90 winding miles from Coblenz southeastward to Karlsruhe—was being outflanked by the blitz drive of the U. S. Third army.

By official account, the First army's Ninth armored division last was reported 10 miles south of Bonn, birthplace of Beethoven and a cultural center, which was under assault by the First division and raked by shells from both German and American guns.

A front dispatch said that for the first time German civilians had joined the battle, and Bonn was proving even tougher than Cologne.

A front dispatch said that Lt. Gen. George S. Patton's Third army patrols were encountering no resistance northwest of Coblenz.

That was true all along the north flank of the 65-mile long corridor to the Rhine, which Patton hammered out with a blazing burst of speed.

On the north end of the front, the U. S. Ninth and Canadian First armies were beating the Germans back into a west bank pocket now eight miles long and at most only five miles wide.

Ensign St. Louis Arrives On Leave

Ensign Stanley St. Louis, who has been in the Merchant Marine service the past 21 months, arrived here Wednesday night to visit with friends and relatives while on a 21-day leave.

Ensign St. Louis recently completed his sixth round trip on the Atlantic. His Liberty ship has been engaged in the hauling of munitions and other materials to Mediterranean ports, and participated in the Anzio beachhead invasion.

His brother, George St. Louis, is now stationed in Athens with the United Rehabilitation and Relief Administration. He went there from Cairo at a time when Greece was still embroiled in civil strife.

George Francis Train was the first person to suggest to inventors erasers attached to pencils; perforations between postage stamps, and steps attached to carriages.

County Road Strikers Given Until 4:30 P. M. Today To Resume Work

Delta county road commission employees who went on strike at 10 a. m. Tuesday will lose their jobs unless they return to work not later than 4:30 p. m. today, the road commission announced yesterday.

The decision of the road commission to set a deadline for the strikers to report for work or be discharged was made at a special meeting Thursday night.

The commission, composed of August Larson, Rock; chairman; M. S. McNabb, Escanaba; and Hilding Norstrom, Gladstone, directed J. T. Sharpsteen, of the commission to notify the strikers as follows:

"The Delta County Road Commission, at a meeting held yesterday, directed me to notify you that, in view of the inconvenience, loss and hardship being suffered by the people of this county due to inadequate snow removal, your continued absence from work cannot be tolerated.

"It is the duty of this Commission to maintain the roads of this county and keep them in satisfactory condition for public use at all times. This function has been only partially discharged since you and other employees left your jobs at 10 o'clock last Tuesday morning and have not since reported for work.

"If you desire reinstatement as an employee of the Delta County Road Commission, the Commission directs that you must return to your usual place of employment not later than 4:30 p. m. March 9, 1945, and indicate to your foreman that you are ready to return to work.

"The Commission further directs that, if you return to work within the time limit set in the foregoing paragraph, you may do so without prejudice to yourself, that is, without the loss of any of the rights or privileges enjoyed by you prior to the time you quit your job with this commission."

According to Sharpsteen about 30 employees walked off their jobs Tuesday morning. The union places the figure at about 37.

Sharpsteen said yesterday that "practically all" roads in the county were open except a few side roads. In the Bark River area, where road condition were bad for a time after the strike, the roads have been cleared by transferring the Garden road crew to Bark River. The road from Cornell to Flat Rock, which was blocked in places, was opened last night.

The ultimatum of the road commission to its striking employees was made the same day that Arnold Alsten, business manager of the union, which as in A. F. of L. affiliate, telephoned a request to the Michigan labor relations board to mediate the dispute. Whether the board would intercede had not been learned last night.

The walkout of the union employees of the road commission was principally in protest against the road commission's refusal to recognize the union. It is the contention of the road commission that it has no legal authority to recognize the union, to bargain, or to enter into agreement with it.

Eagles To Honor Local Servicemen

The Eagles grand aerie organization department has issued a bulletin to all local aeries. They are to honor the members serving in the armed forces during the month of March by securing new members.

The grand aerie is offering a diamond-set lapel pin which will be presented to some member at the end of the month at a special program as an exceptional award.

Worthy President George C. Williams is calling for vigorous and concerted action from every member in the aerie to help in honoring the members in service by getting application blanks from the secretary, Werner A. Olson, and signing up at least one new member during the month.

Robert Sloan, one of the team captains, is gaining rapidly on

Robert Kositzke, the lead-off man, and his aim is to stay in the lead which he has gained by returning ten new applications to the secretary.

The natural enemies of some crop pests are so inconspicuous that trained workers are necessary to detect them.

ONE DOLLAR

A Real Job

ACCORDING to a press dispatch from Lansing, draft boards in Michigan face the greatest selective service reclassification program since 1943. Manpower demands by the various branches of military service have reached the greatest peak since the early days of World War II and to meet those demands every board in the state must "scrape the bottom of the barrel" in their counties.

Under the rules that have been issued the complete reclassification of all men in Michigan under 30 years age, no matter what may be their present status, is ordered and closer scrutiny is in prospect for all able-bodied men in the 30 to 37 year age group.

The membership of county draft boards must continue the agency that stands between the demands of state selective service officials and the protection of vital and essential services that must be preserved in each county. To accomplish this purpose the case of every individual must be considered separately, with respect to the classification he now holds and the urgency of his need in the armed forces.

County draft boards must continue to remain the supreme judges of the men that can be spared from each community and not precipitate a ruinous economic breakdown, such as would hinder the general war effort, rather than promote it.

The task of the county draft boards in this emergency, is one that would be relished by few men.

Nazis in Bad Shape

THE significant importance of the Allied breakthrough to the Rhine river, 50 miles inside Germany, must be measured not only in terms of its military success but also in its effect upon German propagandists who were able to soften that blow to German pride.

On the eastern front, Marshal Zhukov's Russian soldiers have launched the frontal assault on Berlin itself, with the last great natural barrier, the Oder river, behind them.

One major military operation—the actual crossing of the Rhine river by Allied armies in force—is all that remains between Germany and complete annihilation. It is a major barrier, but the Rhine will be crossed and no one knows that better than the German military leaders themselves. The Allies have the aerial protection and the artillery fire power to guarantee success of that operation when the proper time comes. It may be soon, in view of the present disorganized position of the German armies on the western front.

No one can say exactly when the war will end in Europe, but victory is definitely within sight, certainly in 1945.

And then will come the full weight of Allied might down upon the already dizzy-heads of the Japanese war lords. The more than 6,000 Marines who died on Iwo Jima, and their predecessors at Tarawa, Guadalcanal, Saipan, Guam, Luzon and other familiar battlegrounds of the Pacific will not have died in vain.

No Relief for Rails

THE end of the war with Germany, now expected to occur before the end of this year, will not relieve the American railroads of their heavy traffic loads, according to transportation experts.

In fact, there are indications that the railroads will find even greater burdens to carry. Heavy passenger business is anticipated because of the increasing number of wounded servicemen returning to this country for treatment and the thousands of soldiers coming back each month on furlough rotation.

On the freight end, the current greatly accelerated movement of vast quantities of materials to the Pacific theater of war and to the devastated European countries will keep the railroads on the go for many months. Reconversion to civilian production of certain lines of consumer goods also will provide new freight business for transportation agencies after the fall of Germany.

The railroaders are to be kept busy for a long time yet.

Deserves Reappointment

THE best interests of the Upper Peninsula will be served if Governor Kelly reappoints Joseph P. Rahilly, Newberry merchant and sportsman, as a member of the Michigan Conservation commission.

While Commissioner Rahilly received his first appointment from a Democratic governor, he has not been partisan in any way in his work on the conservation commission. He has been primarily interested in the welfare of the Upper Peninsula, using his influence whenever possible to see to it that this region north of the Straits of Mackinaw gets a fair break in the benefits that accrue from a conservation program.

Commissioner Rahilly knows the needs of the tourist industry, sportsmen and other interests of the Upper Peninsula. This he has proven by outstanding service on the conservation commission in the past. He certainly deserves reappointment.

Will They Go Home?

"WE MUST pay just as much attention to demobilizing the bureaucrats as we do to demobilizing the Army or Navy," said Sen. Arthur Vandenberg in a recent radio address.

The Michigan senator wasn't just making another Republican speech about a Democratic administration. He admitted that the war had made bureaucracy inevitable; that generally it had been handled well; that many controls must remain after victory as insurance against economic collapse.

At the same time Mr. Vandenberg cited the potential danger in a body of some 4000 executive decrees which have the force of law, but not the background of open debate and voting of our law-making process. He warned of the tenacity of a bureaucracy, which might seek to perpetuate itself.

Certainly an expensive government payroll of more than 3,000,000 civilians is as foreign to our needs and traditions as an armed force of 10,000,000, however necessary both may be now. But there's a difference between the two groups: unlike most of the millions in the armed forces, the civilian army may not be anxious to go home.

DOUGHNUTS AND DOUGHBOYS

(Christian Science Monitor)

What wouldn't folks at home give to be able to speak a word of cheer or offer a bit of refreshment and relaxation to their fighting lads at the front? Well, the tireless, friendly Red Cross worker is doing just that for them in battle areas throughout the world. And Americans have an opportunity to show how much they value this warm, human contact between themselves and their servicemen, by giving generously to the $200,000,000 fund which the Red Cross is seeking for 1945.

What comfort it has been—and still is—to know that an organization with a heart is doing everything possible to look after the welfare of the men behind enemy prison walls. In addition to procuring better treatment, supplying food and recreational items, and visiting the men, the Red Cross has shipped abroad clothing for 100,000 American prisoners. Servicemen in hospitals, too, have reason to be grateful for its many benefits.

"I wish every American back home could look into a typical Red Cross Club," wrote Richard L. Strout of this newspaper on visiting a club in England. "This club perhaps is more representative of every State and race and nationality and aspiration and hope of the great continental nation that produced these types than any single locality you could pick at home." The son of Brown, the college president; of Giuseppe, the barber; of Charlie, the Greek fruit peddler—all find a welcome. And the doughnuts for doughboys served from the 100 clubmobiles in the combat areas are morale-raisers indeed!

Red Cross workers followed close on the heels of the D-Day invaders, and the need for their services overseas will continue long after V-Day. To what extent that need is filled will depend on how generously Americans respond to the present appeal.

Gracie Allen Says.

I just read where Field Marshal Montgomery's mother had written him telling him to wind up the European war by March 23. I knew those silly Germans would fool around until they got the women good and mad at them.

I think that "Monty's" mother, Lady Montgomery, has really got an idea there. The habit of obeying mother is very strong and if all our Generals were to receive similar letters from their mothers they might just polish off those Nazis that much faster.

I can just see a dazed Von Rundstedt surrendering as Eisenhower says: "Sorry to rush you like this, Von, but Mom says hurry home."

And we don't have to worry about Mrs. Shickelgruber writing to Adolf. They can't even find an incubator that will claim him.

HANDBOOK OF PRACTICAL ENGLISH

Q. We cannot agree whether sentences like this should end with a question mark or a period: "Will you please reply as soon as possible?" A holds that the sentence is interrogative; B is sure it is imperative; me? I'm stumped.

Answer: "Will you . . ." plainly asks a question. Logic, courtesy, and the rules of punctuation make the use of the question mark necessary. If "Will you" is omitted, the sentence becomes imperative and should close with a period.

Q. Please criticize this sentence for us before we put it in print: "Almost nineteen centuries and a half ago this month there was born He who in the sequel left the most powerful impress on life of any one in all history."

World Events Analyzed

Belgrade—This battered capital Yugoslavia has suffered three blights. First came the German conquest, then occupation by the Nazis, and finally the Allied bombings preceding the liberation of the city.

The people have suffered terribly and you see evidences of it everywhere. Less hardy people than the Serbs and Croats, who have endured so much war, could scarcely have survived.

The Germans tried to wipe out every vestige of national culture. On the day before they were forced to evacuate the city, they burned the university and the national library, thereby destroying not merely a priceless collection of Slavic literature but manuscripts on which scholars had been working for years.

On the edge of the city, I visited what had been, at the outbreak of the war, one of the most modern hospitals and clinics in Europe. In the battered structure, looted of much of its equipment by the Germans, the staff is trying to carry on. Through the bitter winter, there has been no heat, even in wards where children have pneumonia and tuberculosis.

MANY CIVILIANS KILLED—

The number of civilian victims of the war during the past four years is put at more than 20,000. Several thousand were killed in the first American bombing, which occurred on the Serbian Easter and is a bitterly tragic memory. Those who speak of it add, however, that it disorganized life so completely that the Germans got no further benefit from local industry.

Belgrade is still a military city, with revolutionary overtones. Young partisans with Tommy guns patrol the principal streets and stand guard at government buildings.

Only one restaurant with music is open, and it is packed every night. On a recent evening, a group of American officers from the small military mission here sat at a table adjoining that of some Russian officers. The latter, with enormous good will, proposed a toast to the United States. Then the American officers proposed a toast to the Red Army. The Russians came back with a toast to Roosevelt, and the Americans with one to Stalin.

With the sturdy Russians, who insisted that each toast must be drunk bottoms up, this could have become a strenuous business. But the restaurant stopped serving at 9 and the patrons left soon afterward, as the 10 o'clock curfew is strictly observed.

If you are on the streets after that time and do not know the password of the day, you are likely to be shot. That fate befell several late carousers in the early days following the liberation.

"COMPRADE" LIKE PASSWORD—

Throughout the Partisan army, among both enlisted men and officers, "Comrade" is the customary term of address. Sometimes it is used with the rank of an officer, sometimes without. It is in itself almost a password. Likewise, the intimate form of the personal pronoun is used freely as the old formal barriers fall away.

The Yugoslav economy is only just beginning to recover from the effects of the German occupation, which was one of the most corrupt in all of Europe. German officials fostered the black market because it meant bribes for them on a vast scale.

The official currency has suffered severe depreciation. Many in the middle class are now selling the last of their heirlooms in order to live. This is especially true of those who refused to have anything to do with the Germans and therefore found life extremely difficult under the occupation.

The newspapers continue to announce executions of collaborators. Among them are writers and artists who yielded to German blandishments and helped German propaganda along. Business men who worked for the occupying forces under German pressure appear to have been more fortunate.

The scars of the past four years go much deeper than the surface. The Germans had worked hard to foment hatred between the Serbs and Croats, building on ancient religious and racial differences. The effects of that propaganda cannot be minimized. Tribal feuds which have meant centuries of blood-letting have certainly been accentuated by the horrors and brutalities of the war in the Balkans.

Meanwhile, the Partisans are still fighting fiercely for the liberation of the rest of the country, with the nearest front only 50 miles from Belgrade. The shape of things to come is still in doubt in this storm center of the old world.

Answer: It's pretty well scrambled. "There was born He . . ." is an unfortunate construction. I'd simplify the sentence thus: Jesus left a more powerful impress on life than anyone else in history.

Q. Will you please settle a dispute? I contend that the collective nouns "herd" and "team" form their plurals thus: "herds, teams." Another teacher insists that "herd" and "team" are plural forms, and it is therefore correct to say, "three herd of cattle; two team of horses."

Answer: Collective nouns like herd, team, pair, couple, flock, company, etc., are grammatically singular in form. They are pluralized like any other singular noun: herds, teams, pairs, couples, flocks, companies. Even the collective noun "people" may be pluralized when the word is used in the meaning of "nationalities or racial groups," as the various peoples of Europe.

MELTING POT — When the Sophomore Chorus of Escanaba high school sang for the entertainment of the Rotary club last Monday, Director Paul Bowers added a postscript to the program with an announcement. He gave the Rotarians information on the ancestral backgrounds of the 54 boys and girls in the chorus, proving that America today is truly the "melting pot" of nationalities.

Manistique — Alfred Erickson was the winner of a three-cornered race for nomination to the office of supervisor in Thompson township balloting on Monday.

Five Washington school and five Jefferson school pupils are shown to have had their names placed on classroom dental honor rolls during February in a report just issued by the school system. The names of those added are as follows: Washington, Lawrence Taylor, Marilyn DeMars, Margaret Kuehl, Anita Carlson and Stella Palmerer; and Jefferson, James Larson, Barbara Duchaine, Gustaf Anderson, Louis Nelson and Joyce Haddy.

The staging of a smelt jamboree the latter part of the month was decided upon at a special meeting of the Wolverine Conservation association at the Sherman hotel last evening. Rev. Karl J. Hammar, president of the Wolverine Conservation association, will name the various committees to make definite plans for the event in the near future. Senator John Luecke, and others are as follows: Swedish 10, Irish 8, English 4, Norwegian, Danish, Bohemian, Luxembourg 2, Finnish, Italian and Polish each 1.

Just for the fun of it, the members of the chorus started comparing the nationalities of their forebears. This grew into a game in which they were listed according to descent. For example, if one of the group was 50 per cent French extraction, he would be classified as French; 50 per cent German, he would be classified German, and so on.

While the French and German nationalities were cited only for example, nevertheless those two nationalities had the largest number of descendants in the group. There were 14 classified as French, and 14 as German.

Others were as follows: Swedish 10, Irish 8, English 4, Norwegian, Danish, Bohemian, Luxembourg 2, Finnish, Italian and Polish each 1.

Most of the songs sung by the chorus were rousing patriotic numbers. When that group of 54, whose heritage is from 12 different lands, sang "Yankee Doodle" it brought realization that as Americans all we are the melting pot of nations, and the hope of the world.

The icicles build into masses that weigh as much as 50 or more pounds. Then the sun comes out and loosens them and they fall during mid-day when people are apt to be under

Although there are no reports of persons being injured by falling icicles, they have been known to fall in other cities. Best plan is to knock them down when they accumulate—and if you can't reach them, keep yourself and your children from beneath them.

RED CROSS GIRL—Mrs. Albert E. Johnson, Bark River township Red Cross chairman, writes George Lindenthal, county Red Cross drive chairman, that: "We have another Delta county girl in the Red Cross organization—if we can claim her."

The girl, for the Red Cross recently informed the Daily Press editor that Miss Mary Audrey Gauthier of Bark River is "now serving with the American Red Cross in the China-India-Burma war theaters."

Perhaps you may wonder why Mrs. Johnson wrote "another Delta county girl." That was because it was previously reported that Miss Elsie Karas of Escanaba, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Karas, now with the Red Cross in France, was believed to be the only Red Cross girl from the United States Navy. She finds the climate here a trifle chilly.

G. L. Brown to Talk Monday Night On Managing Emotions

Professor Gilbert L. Brown, head of the education and psychology department of the Northern Michigan College of Education at Marquette, will speak on "Managing the Emotions." The lecture, the final one in a series of four sponsored by the adult education school, will begin at 8 o'clock.

Monday night in Room 205 at the junior high school. Prof. Brown has had broad experience as a school administrator and college teacher. He received his B. L. degree at Ohio Northern, his M. A. degree from the University of Wisconsin, and did additional work at Harvard and the University of Michigan.

For 20 years, Prof. Brown has assisted college students in making proper emotional adjustments, and in recent years he has worked with younger children. For the past several years, he has appeared frequently before parent-teacher associations, and other organizations in various parts of the upper peninsula as a lecturer on the subject of mental health of school children. Prof. Brown, one of the first in Michigan to study and teach mental hygiene, is, at the present time, a member of the executive committee of the Upper Peninsula Children's Center, an institution sponsored by the Michigan Hospital Commission. Prof. Brown is also a member, and for several years, one of the directors of the Michigan Mental Hygiene Society.

City Residential Area Makes First Red Cross Report

Progress in the solicitation for funds in the 1945 Red Cross drive in the residential area of Escanaba yesterday was reported as "very favorable" by Mrs. M. L. Council, residential drive chairman.

Two zone captains, both in the division of which Mrs. Derlin Remington of 915 Eighth avenue south, is chairman, have reported that solicitation in their zones has been completed.

The first to report was Mrs. Alfred Brandt of 705 South 14th street, whose report showed the zone of nine blocks had reached its quota. The second to report was Mrs. Walter Jepson of 1105 Lake Shore Drive, where in a zone of six blocks equally satisfactory results were accomplished by the solicitors.

"All of the 55 block workers who have so far reported have done an excellent job," Mrs. Council said. "There is a total of 305 block solicitors, and we are confident the residential section of the Red Cross drive will meet, if not exceed, the quota that has been set for us."

Mrs. Council announced that an effort is being made to have the solicitation in the residential area completed by Saturday, March 10. Block solicitors who have completed their calls are asked to notify their zone chairman as soon as possible.

It does not mean, however, that the coverage should be left incomplete, Mrs. Council stressed. Every home should be contacted and repeat calls should be made if necessary to find the persons at home, even if it means not reporting by Saturday.

William G. Jerow Gets Bronze Star

William Gerald Jerow, chief yeoman, has been awarded the Bronze Star, for participating in action against the enemy at Pearl Harbor, Dec. 7, 1941, on board the U. S. S. Honolulu. The ship was subsequently damaged and unable to get under way.

He participated in action against the enemy on board the U. S. S. Saratoga during submarine actions on the 11th and 12th of January, 1942. The ship subsequently was damaged and returned to Pearl Harbor.

The award also is for participation in action against the enemy during the battle of the Coral Sea on board the U. S. S. Chicago from the 4th to 8th of May, 1942.

Yeoman Jerow, who is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Jerow, 517 South Twelfth street, has been in the service since May of 1940, and is now in the Philippines.

Yeoman Jerow's sister, Lt. Frances Jerow, of the Army Nurse Corps, is stationed at Percy Jones hospital in Battle Creek.

Communication

ON ROAD STRIKE Due to my absence from the city of late, this is my first opportunity to express to the public my version of the Delta County Road Commission's refusal to grant recognition to the employees union and their representative.

In the past, I have had occasion to be present when employees have cited the discrimination endured under the reign of the road commission. I cannot accept them to be fabulous gestures, as one time I participated in reinstating one of the employees who had been discharged. In several instances the phrase "dictatorship" has been used. I believe that term is very proper.

The road commission is constantly referring to Rushton's opinion. At the supervisors meeting a thorough discussion was held on the matter, which resulted in the adoption of a resolution recommending the Delta County Road Commission grant the employees union proper recognition. At one time during our meeting there was mention among the supervisors of asking for the resignation of the commission. It is regrettable that such action was not taken.

The commission overlooks the National Recovery Act, National Labor Relations Act and the Michigan Labor Mediation Act. Section 8 of the latter reads as follows: "It shall be lawful for employees to organize together or to form, join or assist in labor or ganizations, to engage in lawful concerted activities for the purpose of collective negotiation or bargaining or other mutual aid and protection, or to negotiate or bargain collectively with their employers through representatives of their own free choice."

It is shameful that we here in America must contend with certain cliques who feel at liberty to deprive employees of their constitutional rights.

Should be commission resort to their threatened action, I make county to cooperate in ridding our selves of this road commission.

There's Greater Family Health Protection when Home "Danger Zones" are CLOROX-CLEAN!

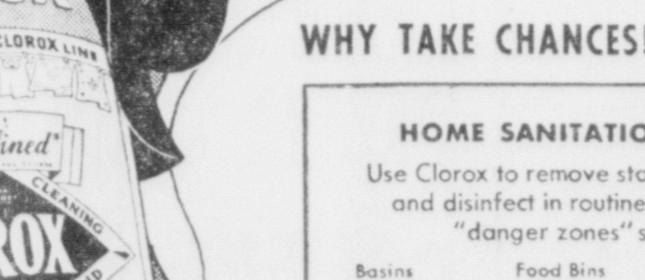

YOUR spotless kitchen and bathroom, your freshly laundered linens may actually be "danger zones." They can look innocently clean, yet in reality harbor germs, a possible menace to your family's health. Ordinary cleansing of such "danger zones" is not enough. Added sanitation is needed. Clorox used in routine cleansing provides added sanitation. Clorox disinfects... it deodorizes, bleaches, removes stains, too. And Clorox is extra efficient, because it is ultra-refined, free from caustic, an exclusive patented quality-feature.

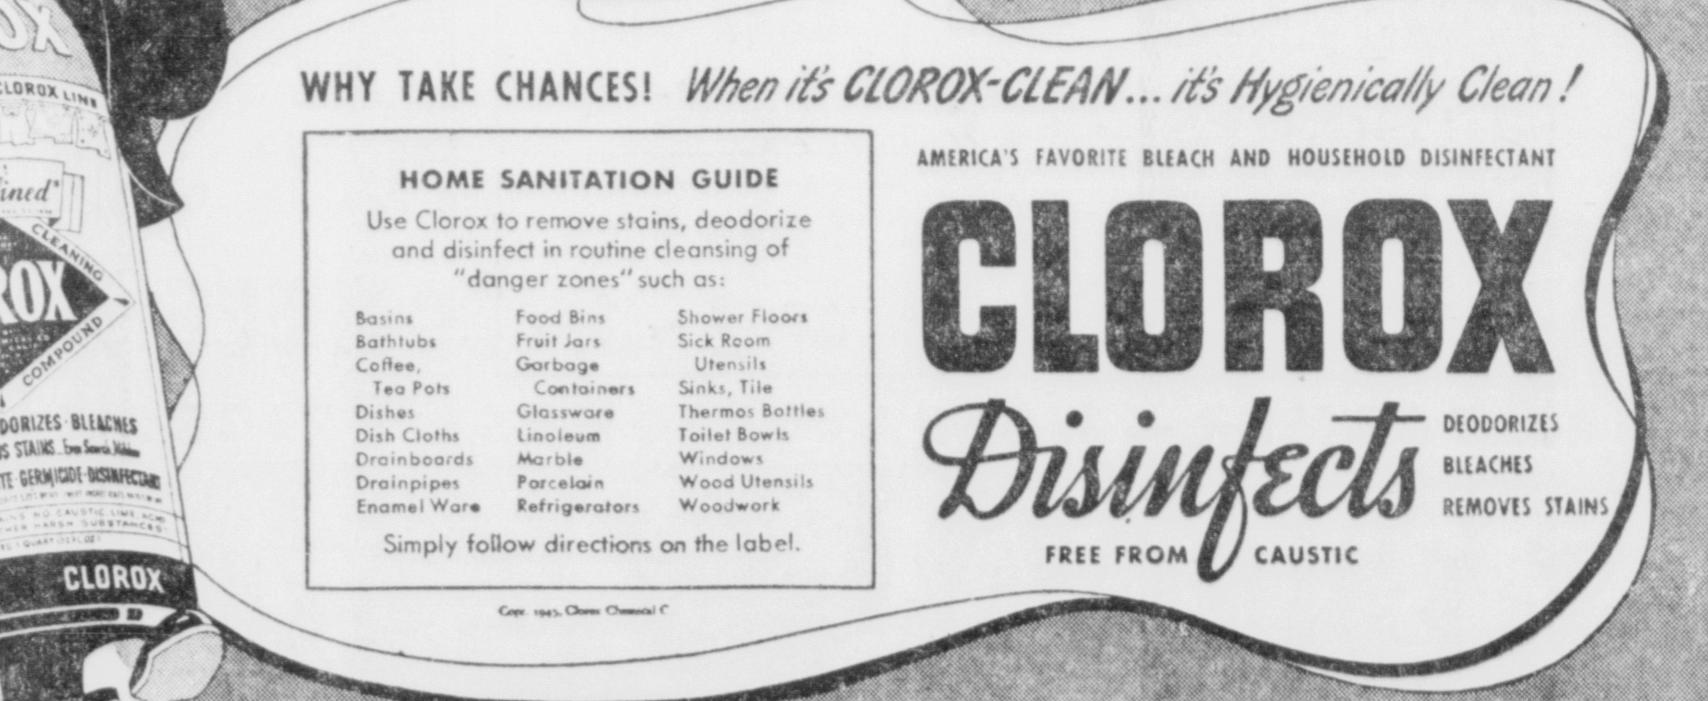

"Danger Zones" in the Kitchen! Make sure kitchen sanitation is not slighted, for infection dangers can spread rapidly. High standards of sanitation are easily attained with Clorox. It disinfects, deodorizes, also removes stains from dishcloths, china, glass, tile, enamel, linoleum, wood surfaces; it destroys mold; reduces risk of food spoilage.

"Danger Zones" in the Bathroom! The bathroom, because it is the family's personal clean-up room, is a natural gathering place for dangerous germs. You can't see them but they're often present, even in spic-and-span bathrooms. For added health protection use Clorox regularly in cleansing your bathroom.

Linens Beautifully White, Sanitary! Clorox gently bleaches your white cottons and linens snowy-white (brightens color-fast cottons and linens), removes stains, scorch, mildew... makes laundry fresh, sanitary. Clorox also reduces the need for long, vigorous rubbing, thus conserving fabrics. Use Clorox in laundering for a whiter, brighter and more sanitary wash.

WHY TAKE CHANCES! When it's CLOROX-CLEAN... it's Hygienically Clean!

HOME SANITATION GUIDE

B-29 Pilot Rates Pyle Column As Funny Man

BY ERNIE PYLE

In the Marianas Islands (Delayed)—The funniest man in our hut of B-29 pilots is Capt. Bill Gifford, of Buford, S. C.

He's a drawly talking southerner, lean, profane and witty. He has a long neck and blonde pompadour hair and a wide mouth and he is the salt of the earth.

Before I arrived Gifford held the record for being the skinniest man in the B-29 base. The other boys call him "the 97-pound wonder." But now they can laugh at me instead of him when we go to take an outdoor shower.

Bill Gifford is an old-timer in aviation, much older than his fellow pilots here. He is 36, and has been flying about 17 years. As he says, he's "too damned old to be in this bombing business."

He says he gets so scared over Japan he can hardly think, and I imagine that's true. But I notice he volunteered to go on a certain specially tough mission when it came up.

The Ghandi Twins

It turned out that Giff and I had lots of mutual friends in the early airmail days, such as Dick Merrill and Gene Brown and Johnny Kyle, so we've become practically bosom pals. The Ghandi Twins, you could call us.

Bill has been around in this world of aviation. He flew the early night airmail. He flew for Pan American in South America. He was in the Royal Canadian Air Force, and made seven trips across the Atlantic, ferrying bombers to England.

It's worth a theater ticket to hear Giff tell about a mission after he gets back. He uses his hands and his feet and half the room and a great portion of his vocabulary. He gets tickled and then gets mad.

It seems that everything always goes wrong when Giff is on a mission. He had an experience to prove it while I was here. I'd gone to visit in a neighboring hut for a few minutes and he couldn't find me, or I would have been with him on it. Thank goodness I always seem to step out at the right moment.

Anyway, it was just a half hour before supper, when Giff got an emergency order to beat it to the airstrip right quick and take a ship up on half hour's test hop.

Wires Were Crossed—

He made the flight all right, but when he got ready to land the wheels wouldn't come down. That's very annoying, you know.

Well, Giff radioed the field, and then began working on those wheels. Of course these big B-29s are so complicated automatic that you do everything by little electrical switches and levers, and not by hand.

Some guys must have spent all day crossing up wires on that airplane," Giff said in his comical exaggeration when he got back.

"Instead of the wheels coming down, the bomb bay doors opened. When I tried to shut them, the upper turret gun started shooting. I hit the light switch by mistake, and the tail skid came down. Just for the hell of it I tried to lower the flaps, and instead the bomb bay doors went shut."

"But I couldn't make head nor tail out of it. I worked on the damn thing for half an hour and was gettin' madder every minute.

Finally I just got so disgusted I hauled off and gave the Goddam switchbox a good smack with the screw-driver, and started to walk out. And just like that the wheels came down and everything was all right."

More Like a Cowboy

Giff looks more like a Texas cowboy than a bomber pilot. He's a conscientious objector to all forms of exercise. All the pilots sleep all night and half the day, but Giff sleeps more than any of them.

He is probably the most unmilitary man in the outfit. He's just an old-shoe southerner, and generous as can be. On his wall are a map of the Pacific and a picture of his wife. He goes around most of the time in nothing but white under-drawers.

The first two fingers of Giff's right hand are off, clear up to the hand. No, he didn't lose them from flak or Jap fighters. He shot them off with a shotgun when he was hunting quail many years ago. He writes a beautiful hand by holding the pen between thumb and last two fingers. He holds a beer can the same way.

Giff calls his plane "Honshu Hank." He wants to form a new fraternity called "Fujiyama, '44." Its membership would be limited to those who had flown over Japan on bombing missions in 1944. He says if he ever goes on another mission in his life it would suit him fine.

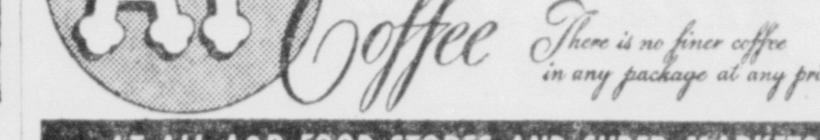

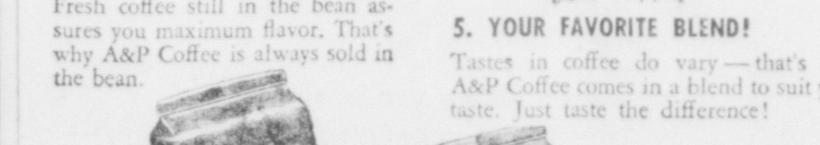

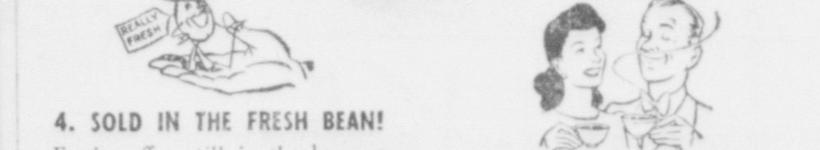

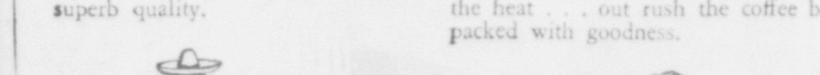

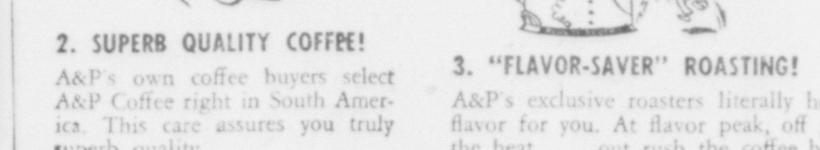

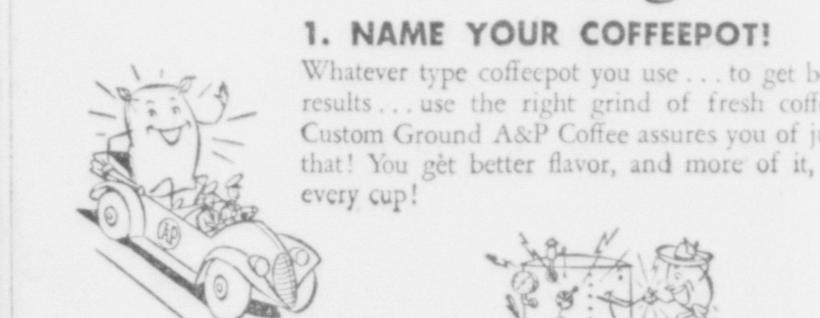

Wrote it not for parasites, many insect pests might increase to such an extent that growing of crops would be impossible.

City's New Street Sweeper Expected To Arrive Monday

Delivery of a modern street sweeping machine which the city of Escanaba ordered nearly one year ago is expected to be made Monday. Acting City Manager A. V. Aronson has been informed by the Austin Western company of Aurora, Ill., manufacturers of the equipment.

The sweeper was ordered in May, 1944, through Charles Gunderson, the company's representative. The piece of equipment will cost $3,885.

The sweeper is modern in appearance and performs, and at the speed it travels all paved streets of the city can be cleared in three days. Acting City Manager Aronson said that use of the sweeper is not expected to be more economical than clearing streets by hand, but because of the manpower shortage it will be possible to keep the streets cleaner than they have ever been in the past.

A rotating brush at the front of the machine sweeps dirt to the gutter, where it is collected by a sweeping brush in a container on the rear of the machine. As the container fills it is dumped and the pile of refuse is then shoveled into trucks.

There will be no dust from the operation of the sweeper, for fine sprays of water wet the refuse ahead of the brushes.

During the autumn when leaves accumulate in the gutters, a leaf rake can be attached to the front of the sweeper to collect leaves rapidly and easily.

The sweeper cleans a path five and one-half feet wide. Overall length of the machine is 15 feet, and its width is six and one-half feet.

Operation of the sweeper in summer may require an extension of the night-parking ban, which is put on in the wintertime to facilitate operation of the city's snow plows.
